Returns You Can Savor

The AR Expansion Fund partners with Acurio Restaurants, led by renowned chef Gastón Acurio, to develop 8–12 new restaurants in the US. This capitalizes on the rising popularity of Peruvian food and leverages Acurio Restaurants' successful track record of operating over 60 profitable restaurants worldwide generating annual revenues exceeding $100 million.

Gastón Acurio

Global Ambassador of Peruvian Cuisine

Gastón, a Peruvian congressman's son, left his Madrid law studies behind to pursue his true passion for cooking. He moved to Paris and enrolled in LeCordon Bleu, where he met his wife Astrid Gutsche. In 1994, they returned to Lima and founded the now legendary restaurant, Astrid & Gastón.

Initially, the restaurant served primarily French dishes, but little-by-little Gastón started incorporating Peruvian techniques and ingredients. He realized the recipe for success was not to emulate European traditions but to revive and promote Peru's own diverse cultural traditions. A new cuisine was born and the couple opened the now legendary Astrid & Gastón franchises across Latin America.

They also created new brands, La Mar and Tanta, which they brought to select cities in the US, Europe, and the Middle East. As Peruvian food gained global prominence, Gastón became the unofficial ambassador of Peruvian cuisine and a household name throughout Peru — known by everyone as simply "Gastón."

A decade ago, there were around 200 Peruvian restaurants around the world. Today in the United States alone, there are over 400, according to the Peruvian Association of Gastronomy (Apega).
